Probably one of the most remarkable lightning accidents of the period was that which took place in one of the east ern counties lately. A man was shear-ing a sheep. Another man, passing on a pony, topped to exchange a few words will; the shearer and watch the clipping operation for a minute or two. He had been standing there but a very short time when a sharp crack of thunder was preceded by a blinding flash of lightning. The shearer was startled almost out his senses by seeing the peny and its rider suddenly collapse in a heap, but in a second the man was up, quite unhart. Then the shepherd, happening to glance at the animal beneath him, found that the lightning had served it as it had served the pony. The sheep was stopdead! This, if may be as well to state is a perfectly true story -- London Tit

The fact that college educations may be insured suggests the constant multi-plication of all kinds of insurances. Fifty years ago this country knew very little about insurance of any kind save the simple contracts of insurance against. death and fire. Today there are various forms of accident insurance, marine insurance, insurance against blizzards, hurricanes and floods, live stock insurance, plate glass insurance, steam boiler msurance, insurance against burglars, mail reatter insurance and, queorly enough, insurance against damage from automatic sprinklers, which are themselves a part of insurance against loss showedwhim a quantity of the currency by fire.

y nee. Nearly all of these schemes are the outgrowth of Yankee ingenuity, save in the case of i surrance against live stock, which according to Paul du Chaillu, did a flourishing business in Iceland 800 years ago. Many of the other forms of insurance owe their origin to special calmittee, against the recurrence of which stread business men proposed to take chances. Insurance against floods, for example, originated with the Consmaugh disaster in the spring of 1889, and maurance against cyclones began just after the town of Grinnel, Lt., was devastated in 18%; One of the mest interesting forms of insurance is the accident business, in which the companies make their profits on broken bones, cracked skulls, teran-tula and snake bites, sprained muscles and scalded bodies. A man in Syracuse recently broke his arm, and 20 days' later, having tailed to take precautions, be died of pheumonia. The court held that he died of an accident, and the m-surance company in which he held an accident policy had to pay. Another man, who hyed in Morristown, N. J., got up in the night to close a window. While walking across the room in the dark he wanking across the room in the tark are struck his shin on a chair. Inflamma-tion developed, followed by grave com-plications, and the man died after hav-ing had his leg amputated. The insurance company confested that he had neglected to take proper precautions in not lighting a condle before crossing the room, but the court held against the theory, and the company paid the loss. The court of appeals of this state recently affirmed a ruling of the supreme court in the case of M. M. Paul, who was sufficiated in his sleeping room by escaping gas. Both courts held that he died from an accident. These rulings tend to show that there is no little difference of opinion as to what constitutes

In England the courts hold views as to the meaning of the word "accident" that differ widely from the interpreta of appeals in England, for example, recently decided a case of a farmer who was killed by a ball in crossing one of his fields. It was the opinion of the court that the man incurred an obvious risk in crossing the field in the presence of the hall; that any man taking reasonable precautions would not have more Bratish Columbia, though eventually red Euch a risk, and that his death was they are certain to be swamped there.—

Dentist's Experience With a Woman and an Aching Tooth. The drummer had told a commercial story, and the dentist, who had been extracting much pleasure therefrom, followed with a professional yarn. "At one time in my early practice in country town," he said, "there came to me a very nervous woman to have a tooth extracted. She carried on so that I could scarcely get her into the chair, and as soon as I put the forceps near her mouth she screamed and bounced around so I couldn't do anything with her. After two or three visits, each worse than the other, I suggested that I take her to the nearest large town, where a dentist administered gas. Well, the tooth hart her so that at last she consented, and I took her there, about 25

"I went armed with a pair of forceps as a matter of babit, and when we got to the place and she saw the gas bag and other appliances she had them again worse than before, and I had to give it up and take her back home. I was thor-onghly provoked and felt like taking a club to her, but she had money and was paying for her foolishness, so I tried to restrain my feelings. About 10 miles out from town as the train was plugging was holding her jaw and I was holding mine, in the seat beside her, we struck a broken rail, and the last thing I knew we were rolling down an embankment and being piled up at the between in a very promisenous fashion. I don't know how it came about, but I wasn't burt much. I dragged my patient out through a window and had her on a bank near by. She was pretty brilly bruise I and had a lat of fruit for some hum, and the felbeen knocked senseless, and as I was endeavoring to restore her a brilliant thought occurred to me. Why We Do Not Take Scalps, If war is unhappily still prevalent, it s at least not war in which every clan is fighting with its neighbors, and where conquest means slavery or extirpation. When they fight with other nations, they do not enslave nor massacre their prisoners. Taking the purely selfish ground, a

Hading the purely section ground, a Hobbes can prove conclusively that everybody has benefited by the social compact which substituted peace and order for the original state of war. Is this, then, a reversal of the old state of things—a combating of a "cosmic process" I should rather say that it is a development of the tacit alliances and a modification so far of the direct or in-ternecine conflict. Both were equally implied in the older conditions, and both still exist. Some races form alliances while others are crowded out of exist ence. Of course I cease to do some things which I should have done before I don't attack the first man I meet it
